I Need Your HELP!

This has been a challenging year with Covid. I'm asking for your help – please keep your children home if they are sick. A "cold" is not "just a cold" until we know it is not Covid or another illness. Students coming to school with any illness may then spread it to others - then they must get a doctor note or Covid test! Our School Plan notes that students with symptoms at school will be sent home.

Student Flu Vaccination

The school will not be offering a flu vaccination clinic for students this year. The flu vaccine is readily available at pharmacies and health care provider offices. Please get your child vaccinated against the flu.

Covid Vaccination

Currently, approximately 73% of CHRHS students are fully vaccinated for Covid. Our way out of this pandemic is to have a high vaccination rate. If you have been on the fence about getting your child vaccinated and with the advent of the approval for 5-11 year to be vaccinated, it's important that you have accurate information from trusted sources to make your decisions. Please feel free to contact me or your child's health care provider. The CDC Covid 19 website has the latest information - <https://www.cdc.gov/coronavirus/2019-ncov/vaccines/index.html>

UPDATE ON CHILLS THRIFT & FOOD PANTRY

Ms. Campbell has been hard at work creating an inviting space for our new CHILLS THRIFT! This free store will be open to all (staff too!), so stop in and check it out. There will be new shelves installed this week to house food, hygiene products, and household items all of which are available for you! Big thanks to Ms. Campbell for all of her hard work, and Mr. Salomon for helping rally the Hatchery troops to make the shelves a reality for this space. Keep an eye out for further updates about when the new annex will be stocked and open!

Transitional Life Skills November News

This fall our focus has been on getting outside to enjoy our beautiful midcoast area before the cold weather sets in. Although, that being said, there is no bad weather, only poor choices in clothing, so we aim to get outside year long...

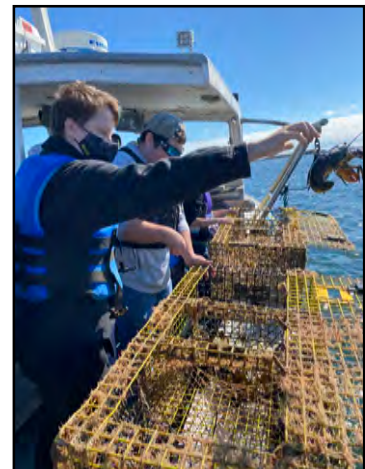

For our first adventure, we visited Coastal Maine Botanical Gardens! Our class had a plant propagation lesson, a Five Senses Garden Experience Tour and a hike to see the giant troll sculptures hidden around the beautiful gardens.

The following week we went on an ocean adventure with Captain Alley on F/V Tornado Alley. Captain Alley gave us a boat tour of the Whitehead Lighthouse and Two Bush Lighthouse, as well as a lobster trap haul demonstration.

Next, we picked apples at Hope Orchards; we learned about different varieties of apples, and took our bounty back to class to make apple tarts and apple sauce. The TLS crew also joined Rising Tide for an apple cider press demonstration and cider samples (Thank you RT!). Last week, we hiked Fernald's Neck Preserve and had a picnic by Balance Rock.

Most recently, this October, we joined the 2021 Life Happens Outside Challenge through the DOE. "The Teens to Trails" goal is to challenge Maine middle and high schools to foster an appreciation for the outdoors and its multitude of wellness benefits. This week-long challenge took place Saturday, October 23 through Friday, October 29 and was designed to get students active and connected to the outdoors. The sponsor, Arcadia, provided a $1,000 prize to the three Maine middle and high schools with the highest amount of outdoor time proportional to their school size (at time of publishing the winners were TBD). We hiked/logged the PBMC Wellness Trail, Bald Rock Mountain Multiuse Trail (from the Lincolnville side), and the Georges Highland Path to Round The Mountain Trail and on campus hiking during this challenge. In November we will hike the Jones Brook Area Trail beginning in the Thomaston Town Forest. All trails we have accessed, so far, have been within 25 minutes of school and do not take more than 1.5 hours to hike. To acclimate our bodies for all of this hiking, we have been accessing our very own Crockett Trail as much as possible. We will plan on as many excursions as our academic schedule allows to build our stamina and our appreciation for what Maine has to offer. A big thanks goes out to our Wave Cafe crew, who keep us well fed with brown bag lunches on the longer field trips! We are very fortunate to live here in Coastal Maine (where the mountains meet the sea!). Enjoy your Thanksgiving break everyone & get outside if you are able!

Visual & Performing Arts Department

Congratulations to the Visual & Performing Arts Department's

Student of the Month of October

Audrey Leavitt

At Camden Hills, Audrey is a musical leader and team player. Her dedication and discipline both inside the classroom and during after school activities is exemplary. Audrey is an inspired musician. Over the years music has played a substantial role in Audrey's life. She has developed skills playing multiple instruments, such as the flute, french horn, and piano, but her main interests lie in vocal performance.

Her musical journey started in third grade when she was asked to sing the National Anthem at a community meeting at her previous school in St. George. When Audrey got a positive response from that experience, she decided to continue on her musical adventure into high school. She has had numerous educators and mentors that have helped her get to where she is today, including Richard Walton, Susan Iltis, Beverly Pacheco, Kristin O'Neal, Nancy Rowe, and Kim Murphy.

During her time in high school Audrey has participated in many musical events. She has performed the National Anthem for several sports events, such as soccer and basketball games. Freshman year she took part in Chorale, Concert Band and the school musical Anything Goes. By sophomore year, Audrey had discovered that her musical interests lie more in the vocal performance aspect of the performing arts. She went on to become a member of Chamber Singers, the female a cappella group; Fortissima, and the musical Mary Poppins where she played the role of the Bird Woman. Junior year was when Audrey really began to grow both musically and personally. She made it a personal goal to serve as a musical leader and help others musically. She once again sang in Chamber Singers, and was a part of the Spring musical The Theory of Relativity. This year Audrey is continuing her musical path by performing in Chamber Singers, Co-leading Fortissima, and leading in the fall musical Monty Python's Spamalot School Edition.

In addition to all of that Audrey has also participated in District 3 and All State choirs throughout high school. She started her district 3 experience in sixth grade and has continued that adventure into high school. Once in high school, she was introduced to the All State Festivals and has been engaged in the choir since sophomore year.

After high school Audrey plans to go to college to become an elementary school teacher with a focus in music. She continues singing and performing in local musicals as opportunities present themselves. Her hope in the future is to encourage young people to engage in musical activities.

A thought that she would like to share with younger peers is "I often say that the music wing is where I can be myself. While I know I can be myself anywhere in the school, it is the place that makes me feel most comfortable and happy. Many would say that I am a shy person, but when I start to sing I 'come out of my shell' and become a whole new person. The music program here at CHRHS really is amazing and it's something that is easy to take for granted."

Students Transform “Waste” to Resources at The Hatchery Workshop

By DANNY SALOMON
Hatchery Coordinator

The Radical Reuse movement has been steadily extending beyond the bounds of The Hatchery Workshop, like mycelium. Look around, and you may see traces of its presence growing in the landscape.

As you drive around campus, notice the emergence of outdoor wooden furniture in the courtyard by the Science and Humanities wings. This ring of handmade seating elements, known as “The Learning Circle,” represents the effort of students in The Hatchery’s Shop Apprenticeship Program.

Inspect the end grain of any component—as we have during class—and count the growth rings. Each ring denotes a year in the tree’s life. If you do this, you’ll discover that the lumber which makes up this beautiful furniture collection came from trees two- to three-times as old as the students who made it.

Think about this: had we not intercepted it, all this perfectly workable lumber—much of which began its existence as seedlings in the 1970s and early ‘80s—was destined for the landfill due to minor “imperfections.” Rather than accept this regrettable standard, students gained skills, created functional objects, and acquired a newfound awareness of their environment from this undervalued stockpile. In short, they transformed so-called “waste” to knowledge, resources, community assets.

On Saturday, October 23rd, The Hatchery hosted its first event on Radical Reuse, celebrating the achievements of these young Apprentices/Ecopreneurs, and further interrogated the issue of “waste” management in our community and culture at large. In the afternoon, students showcased their newly acquired skills by running furniture-building and screen-printing workshops, even selling furniture and T-shirts they produced themselves to friends, relatives, teachers, and community members.

In the evening, our event shifted to a guest lecture panel. Two CHRHS parents, Shawn Stockman (Green Stewards Alliance, Founder) and Tia Anderson (Midcoast Habitat, Director) shared their professional expertise: unpacking the good, the bad, and the ugly of material flows on a local and global scale. The evening ended with a remote presentation from Sara Badiali (Reclamation Administration, Founder), a very special guest from Portland, Oregon, who was instrumental in passing the first ordinance of its kind in the world: mandating deconstruction, rather than demolition, for any homes built before 1940 within city limits.

What does this mean? Rather than demolish these buildings—crushing them mercilessly with an excavator, spraying them continuously with a fire hose to minimally manage hazardous dust emissions, scooping all the mixed-up debris into a series of dumpsters, and sending it to the landfill—Portland pioneered a bold alternative: requiring its older buildings be carefully dismantled, often by hand, saving sometimes upwards of 90% of building materials from heading to the landfill. These materials then get brought to salvage stores (like the Habitat ReStore in Rockport), and are re-sold and -purposed by a variety of professionals:

artists, craftspeople, designers, furniture-makers, builders, and even homeowners. Since this unprecedented ordinance proved so successful in Portland, Oregon, Badiali has assisted other cities throughout the country—Denver, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, etc.—to begin making a transition from demolition to deconstruction practices, as well.

If Portland, Oregon can do it, why not Midcoast cities? Or better yet: if Portland, Oregon can do it, why not Portland, Maine?

As a response to this enlightening event, The Shop Apprentices, Sadie Woodruff ('22) and Soren Beckstrom ('23) screen-printing T-shirts for the Radical Reuse event.

Hatchery has been even more committed to practicing Radical Reuse throughout its many fall and winter projects.

Next time you venture over to the Bus Barn, look around back at the start of a new garden. Collaborating with Zenith, The Hatchery facilitated a raised-bed build exclusively using salvaged lumber—some of which was sourced from deconstructed pallets—and helped preserve the beds by using on old Japanese technique, shou sugi ban.

With that same supply of pallet lumber, The Hatchery's Shop Apprentices have been building an attractive new shelving system for the student food pantry at Camden Thrift. In a similar spirit, Ms. Brown's BIG ART students have been assembling kinetic sculptures at The Hatchery Workshop over the past month, imaginatively incorporating found objects and sundry scraps.

And, most recently, Principal Carlson asked The Hatchery to creatively redesign and repurpose the old booths from the cafeteria that have been sitting within the colonnade by the front entrance since the beginning of the school-year. Get ready for an exciting example of student-designed and -built adaptive reuse in the coming weeks!

We implore you all join us in the Reuse Revolution. It's only just begun!

If you have any comments, questions, or insights about deconstruction, radical reuse, or the happenings at The Hatchery—please don't hesitate to reach out: daniel.salomon@fivetowns.net.
